Scenes of Parisian Modernity: Culture and Consumption in the Nineteenth Century. New York: Palgrave Macmillan, 2009

-- Integrating the history of Paris with the history of consumption, the press, publicity, advertising and spectacle, this book traces the evolution of the urban core districts of consumption and explores elements of consumer culture such as the print media, publishing, retail techniques, tourism, city marketing, fashion, illustrated posters and Montmartre culture in the nineteenth century. The book emphasizes the tension between art and industry and between culture and commerce, a dynamic that significantly marked urban commercial modernity that spread new imaginary about consumption. I argue that Parisian consumer culture arose earlier than generally thought, and explore the intense commercialization Paris underwent.

Editor of an Edited Volume

H. Hazel Hahn ed., Cross-Cultural Exchange and the Colonial Imaginary: Global Encounters via Southeast Asia. National University of Singapore Press/ Distributed by the University of Chicago Press in N. America, 2019

This volume places the circulation of objects, ideas, and practices in a trans-imperial framework across Southeast Asia, Europe, and nearby regions, through approaches cross-fertilized through cultural history, colonial history, material culture studies, and related fields. This volume emphasizes the multi-linear trajectories of the flow of decorative objects, architectural styles, photographs, sartorial practices, music, and ethnographic knowledge. Emphasizing the interplay of diverse actors, this book argues that cross-cultural exchange led to multi-linear trajectories, and revises the view of cultural flow predominantly from Europe to Southeast Asia, or from the colonizers to the colonized.

Co-Editor of an Edited Volume

Vimalin Rujivacharakul, H. Hazel Hahn, Ken Tadashi Oshima and Peter Christensen eds., Architecturalized Asia: Mapping a Continent through History. Honolulu and Hong Kong: University of Hawai'i Press & Hong Kong University Press, 2013

-- This volume approaches "Asia" as a discursive structure and cultural construct, whose spatial and ideological formation can be examined through the lenses of cartography, built environments, and visual narratives.
