

Module II: Philosophy of the Human Person
Proposal to Create a New Core Course

Instructions: Use this form to propose a Philosophy of the Human Person University Core course. Forms for each of the other Core courses can be found on the Core website. Please provide the information requested in each section and insert a provisional syllabus that includes, at minimum, the following information: the learning outcomes, possible texts or types of texts that will be used, types of assignments and their nature/size/length, and a thematic outline describing how the course progresses through the quarter. Submit your proposal materials through the normal process for course review in your department and college/school, using the deadlines set by your college/school curriculum committees. In general, each faculty member who plans on teaching a customized version of a Core class should submit a separate proposal. Identical courses that will be taught by multiple faculty members may be included on a single proposal, but in those cases department chairs should address the issue of faculty participation in Section V.

The questions on this proposal form reflect the specific requirements for this course as explained on the course guidelines document. Please refer to that document for the details (a copy is attached at the end of this form for your convenience).

Section III: Core Requirements

Required Learning Objectives: Each Core course is responsible for helping students achieve the learning objectives assigned to that Core category. Each of the assigned learning objectives for this course is listed below. Please explain how the course is designed to achieve each of these objectives. Your explanations need not be long, but should be complete enough so that the Core Curriculum Committee can understand how well the objectives are addressed in the course. Please note that the course syllabus, required for this proposal, should also address these learning objectives.

1. This course helps students understand the role of philosophical reasoning as a central practice/method of inquiry in the Jesuit tradition, important thinkers and texts in that tradition, and some of the questions about the human person that have shaped that tradition and ground that tradition's study of ethics.

2. By teaching rigorous philosophical methods of reasoning, this course helps students develop skills in logical analysis and reasoned dialogue, the ability to understand and assess the soundness of arguments, and improved skills in constructing well-reasoned arguments (including the ability to formulate objections to their own and others' arguments).

3. This course helps students understand key content, central problems, major perspectives, and methods of analysis of Philosophy.

4. This course assists students in becoming effective writers, including writers of high quality academic prose.

5. Through the study of Philosophy, students will encounter and be better prepared to identify and understand issues of ultimate meaning, rights, and justice.

Essential Pedagogy: Please provide brief explanations of how this course incorporates the essential pedagogy identified in the Core course guidelines document (listed below).

1. Writing assignments should be included in all sections of this course, with instructor feedback on content, writing mechanics, and style.

Common Learning Objectives: All Core courses share a common responsibility for helping students achieve the objectives listed below (see Common Learning Objectives in the Core for more information). However, it is understood that different courses will emphasize some objectives more than others. Please identify the common learning objectives emphasized in your course by checking the boxes below.

- 1. Where relevant, courses should help students understand how the field and subject matter being studied are related to or reflect the Jesuit intellectual tradition. In particular, Core courses should help students reflect on questions of meaning, spirituality, ethics, values, and justice.
- 2. Students should develop analytic thinking and reasoning skills in all Core courses, although the forms those skills take vary across disciplines.
- 3. Students should come to recognize and appreciate complexity and ambiguity, as well as the limitations of knowledge and imperfections in understanding of the subjects being studied.
- 4. Study in a variety of disciplines will assist students in understanding and valuing the wide range of academic insights and perspectives.
- 5. All courses should help students develop as writers of clear, effective, and elegant prose, including the ability to adapt their writing to different situations and content.
- 6. Class discussions, in all their forms, help students learn to engage in effective and responsible discussion and debate.
- 7. All faculty are encouraged to help students understand how their studies prepare them to meaningfully engage important issues and become responsible global citizens.

Insert any necessary explanation here. Otherwise, leave blank.

Section IV: Instructor Information

1. Submitting Faculty: Qualified individuals from any department are welcome to submit Core course proposals in all categories. Please briefly describe the academic background and experience that prepares you to teach this course. Note: In most cases, this should be very simple (e.g. a directly relevant terminal degree, teaching experience in similar courses, etc.), but if additional information regarding your academic preparation for this course is necessary, please include that here.

2. Additional Faculty: If your department's plans include faculty members other than the individual listed on this form being scheduled to teach this specific course, please list their names here with very brief explanations of their relevant preparation. Any faculty member teaching this course should have qualifications directly comparable to those of the proposing faculty member. If the versions of the course they will be teaching are expected to vary in any significant way (i.e. not using the same syllabus), each faculty member should submit a separate proposal. As new faculty members join the university and are assigned to this course, their faculty information should be submitted to the Core as soon as possible.

Section V: Other Information

- 1. Short title: To be used in published information and to identify your course in SUOnline. 30 characters maximum.
- 2. Short description: To be published in lists of available Core courses and included in the course description on SUOnline to assist students in selecting courses. Approx. 50-75 words.
- 3. Special Course Requirements: If you checked any of the boxes on page 1 regarding library resources, facility requirements, or other special elements in the course, or if there are other unique features that should be considered in planning and supporting this course (e.g. team teaching, special scheduling needs, etc.), please explain.
- 4. Other Information: Please provide any additional information you feel necessary or helpful for the review of this course.

Thank you for submitting a proposal for this Core course! Please remember that review of this proposal is a multi-step process, proceeding through department, college/school, and Core stages. The University Core will notify both the faculty members and their departments when courses are approved by the Core Curriculum Committee.

Syllabus: A syllabus is a required part of this proposal form. There is space at the end of the form (page 8) for you to paste the syllabus into this document.

Submissions: Please submit this form through your college or school's normal submission process for new course proposals. If you are submitting this form electronically, please save it with a new name that includes the name of the course category as well as your last name (e.g. "Acad Writing – Jones").

The Core guidelines document for this course is included here for your reference. Some questions in this form refer to specific requirements listed in this document.

UCOR 2500: Philosophy of the Human Person
Course Description and Guidelines

Description: This course introduces students to the methods of rigorous philosophical reasoning; introduces students to the philosophical questions, methods, and figures that have played key roles in shaping the Jesuit approach to education and scholarship; and teaches students to critically examine assumptions about reality (especially assumptions about our natures as human beings). Each section explores two or more of the following fundamental philosophical questions: the problem of human knowing, the mind/body problem, the problem of personal identity, the problem of freedom and determinism, and the problem of other persons. This course also aims to develop critical reflective skills to prepare students for more in-depth study in ethics (in the subsequent Ethical Reasoning course), improve critical thinking and writing skills, and enhance students' appreciation for complexity and ambiguity. Prerequisites: Module I Writing, Humanities seminar, and Social Science seminar.

Notes or Guidelines:

1. This course combines three important elements: 1) an introduction to philosophical reasoning, 2) some study of how the Jesuit tradition has been informed by philosophical thinking, and 3) the exploration of two or more key philosophical problems related to our nature as human persons (e.g. the problem of human knowing, the mind/body problem, the problem of personal identity, the problem of freedom and determinism, the problem of other persons, etc.).
2. Faculty are encouraged to work within the official description of the course to develop sections with specific foci or themes, which will be reflected in the section titles. All sections should specifically address the three elements identified in the previous note.

Essential Pedagogy:

1. Writing assignments should be included in all sections of this course, with instructor feedback on content, writing mechanics, and style.

Learning Objectives: Helping students meet the Core Learning Objectives is a collaborative effort.

1. All Core courses share a common responsibility for helping students achieve some objectives, and faculty should review the common objectives document (see Common Learning Objectives in the Core) and consider how those objectives can be reinforced and developed in this specific course.
2. In addition, each course has specific objectives for which it has special responsibilities. The table on the back of this page describes the ways in which this course has primary responsibility for one or more of the Core Learning Objectives. These objectives must be explicitly addressed in all sections of this course.

Philosophy of the Human Person: Learning Objectives
Core Learning Objectives	How objectives should be addressed within this course (bullets are the relevant language from the Core Learning Objectives)
Jesuit, Catholic Intellectual Traditions: Through knowledge of Jesuit, Catholic intellectual traditions and understanding of diverse religious traditions, students will reflect on questions of meaning, spirituality, ethics, values, and justice.	1. This course helps students understand the role of philosophical reasoning as a central practice/method of inquiry in the Jesuit tradition, important thinkers and texts in that tradition, and some of the questions about the human person that have shaped that tradition and ground that tradition’s study of ethics. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Understand academic traditions (theological, philosophical, etc.) on which Jesuit education is based
Disciplinary Knowledge and Integrative Learning: By studying humanities, social sciences, natural sciences, mathematics, and fine arts, students will learn how different disciplines pursue knowledge. They will learn disciplinary ways of posing questions, gathering and analyzing evidence, developing cogent arguments, and engaging issues related to nature, culture, and society. Students will also learn to integrate knowledge and explore their intellectual passions.	2. By teaching rigorous philosophical methods of reasoning, this course helps students develop skills in logical analysis and reasoned dialogue, the ability to understand and assess the soundness of arguments, and improved skills in constructing well-reasoned arguments (including the ability to formulate objections to their own and others’ arguments). <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Critical thinking 3. This course helps students understand key content, central problems, major perspectives, and methods of analysis of Philosophy. This course introduces students to the study of Philosophy, helping them develop important foundational knowledge as well as skills in thinking philosophically about questions. Collectively, this course and others in Module I and II help students understand and appreciate the diverse contents, approaches to inquiry, and methods of answering questions or solving problems of a variety of disciplines. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Exposure to content and approaches to inquiry of different disciplines drawn from the humanities, social sciences, natural sciences, mathematics, and fine arts • Ability to apply disciplinary knowledge and methods to answer questions and solve problems • Appreciation of how knowledge is discovered and constructed within and across disciplines
Communication: Students will be able to communicate effectively in a variety of genres and for different audiences and purposes through writing, speaking, and visual expression.	4. This course assists students in becoming effective writers, including writers of high quality academic prose. Helping students improve their writing skills is a goal of all Core courses. Written assignments in this class will focus on genres of writing appropriate to the study of Philosophy, focusing on writing that interprets philosophical texts and develops philosophical arguments.
Global Engagement: Students will examine their roles in local, regional, national, and transnational cultures and communities. Students will be prepared to act, from an informed perspective, on local and global issues that surround and affect them.	5. Through the study of Philosophy, students will encounter and be better prepared to identify and understand issues of ultimate meaning, rights, and justice. As appropriate to the individual section’s focus, these courses should explore different approaches to human nature, purpose, and value. The foundation in thinking about these issues will be built upon in subsequent courses, both in the Core and in majors. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Appreciate importance of issues of justice, such as social justice, environmental justice, & human rights
