THE OFFICE OF
SPONSORED PROJECTS

ANNUAL REPORT

2022-2023

Message from the Provost

As a Jesuit, comprehensive institution of higher learning, we have the distinct advantage of preparing our students within a community of mission aligned, teacher-scholars. Our faculty's work is exemplified in the pursuit of external funding – from foundation-funded community engagement projects to federally funded research. It is this engagement with scholarship and creative work that makes our faculty experts in the classroom. That is why strengthening scholarship support and infrastructure is a priority within our Reignited Strategic Directions Goal 2.

I am proud to see the impacts of sponsored projects on our faculty's scholarly programs and on our curriculum, student experience, and community as shared in this annual report, and am grateful for the principal investigators and project directors who have submitted grant proposals and managed grants over the past year. Thank you to the Office of Sponsored Projects who have continued to lead our campus through increasingly complex proposals and compliance requirements, and for moving the work of Reignited Strategic Directions Goal 2.2 forward.

Sincerely,

Dr. Shane Martin
Provost

Message from the Director

I am thrilled to share the sponsored projects data highlighting your achievements this past year – a 13% increase in new funding, an increase in our share of federal support from 35% to 41%, and a 57% proposal success rate, to name a few. But even more so, I'm proud to highlight some of the impacts of these sponsored projects through this year's annual report.

Sponsored projects impact...

- Our students – Over half of awards received in FY23 directly impact our students through employment and research experiences, scholarships, or other support to enrich their experience at SU.
- Our community – A new grant received by the College of Education will prepare our students to address the mental health crisis amongst youth in Washington, while a new grant in the College of Nursing will diversify the healthcare workforce to meet the needs of underserved urban and rural communities.
- Our curriculum – Over $1.3M in grant funding has been awarded in support of RSD Goal 1 – Reimagine and Revise Our Curriculum, with another four proposals pending.

These are just a few examples of the many ways Seattle University faculty and staff are making an impact.

Over the 2022-23 academic year, the OSP increased engagement with our community by 63%. These interactions set the stage for more impact as we work together to prepare grant proposals, grow collaborations, and implement projects impacting our students, community, and curriculum!

I invite you to read our annual report and learn more about the impact of sponsored projects. Thank you for allowing the Office of Sponsored Projects to accompany you through your scholarly and programmatic journeys - it is an honor to support such impactful projects.

Welcome to our newest OSP team members!

Aika Foz joined OSP in March in our new role of Grant Management Specialist. Aika supports the post-award aspects of the grant lifecycle from financial management support, assistance navigating internal systems, and closing awards, amongst the many other complexities of award management and compliance.

Magda Vidal joined OSP in June as our new Program Coordinator. Magda supports the whole OSP team with various projects from communications, software implementation, compliance tracking, and event management.

We're grateful for the additional support, refreshed energy, and the ability to increase our collective impact on campus and beyond!

The Impact of External Funding

In our annual report each year, we measure the direct impact of our pursuit of external funding in dollars requested and received, and number of proposals and awards. While compelling, these figures do not describe the full impact. There is a ripple effect from the external funding that is awarded to Seattle University that goes beyond dollars and number of awards. From the student to the faculty to the community member and beyond, there are a multitude of impacts that grants have.

With external funding, faculty can refine and conduct research to contribute to their field, gain knowledge that informs their teaching, make connections with colleagues, and enhance their CVs. Students who are involved in externally funded scholarship acquire critical experiences for graduate school and the workforce. Even students who don't directly work with faculty on a project are impacted by the informed and updated curricula and available scholarship funds. And many of our Seattle University neighbors, including schools and businesses, feel the impact of the external funding received by SU.

FUN FACTS

Over 55% of new awards in 2023 supported students through research experiences, wages, or scholarships.

+55%

Four new 2023 awards will enable SU to award over $5.7 million dollars in scholarships to students.

$5.7MM

All divisions (100%) received external funding in 2023, which directly impacts student learning and engagement.

100%

800

Nearly 800 College of Nursing students each year will utilize the new equipment in the Clinical Performance Lab as a result of a grant from the Washington Student Achievement Council.

50+

All SU undergraduate students will experience updated curricula in History and Core classes as a result of a grant funded project to incorporate the complex constructions of race and racialization into over 50 new and revised classes.

40

40 social studies teachers from western WA will participate in an institute to increase their understanding of federal law and process, augmenting their skills and motivation to teach about the federal judiciary in their classrooms.

Faculty in the Colleges of Science and Engineering and Nursing secured four new awards to advance their research agendas focused on improving human health outcomes for diverse populations.

240

The College of Education's Center for Change in Transition Services will provide training for teachers and administrators from over 240 school districts as they support their students with disabilities.

1000

Approximately 1,000 low income neighborhood youth and their families that benefit from strengthened education and support systems through the Seattle University Youth Initiative.

1000

The Law school will partner with other Washington law schools to expand access to affordable legal representation to nearly 1,000 individuals who are within 200 to 400 percent of the federal poverty level and unable to afford such services at rates commonly offered in the marketplace.

30

Thanks to support from several funders, 30 students from underrepresented backgrounds will participate in an immersive business education program, which also provides support for families navigating the college application and financial aid process.

Academic Safety

Over the past year, OSP's Breena Stoner has worked with academic departments to identify safety needs and begin building programs that reflect and bolster existing practices. Through interactions with staff and faculty, it is clear that the well-being of our community is integrated in everything we do. Breena toured laboratories, shops, studios, and makerspaces across the university and engaged in conversation with staff and faculty to better understand the landscape of health and safety on campus. The products of that work are reflected on the Academic Safety website and include new

- Program documents and supporting tools and resources,
- Safety committees with scope ranging from the whole university to individual buildings,
- Training programs for employees and undergraduate researchers,
- A chemical inventory and safety management system that represents a significant cost savings to the university, and
- A pilot program to help fund departmental purchases of safety equipment.

FY23 Highlights

SAFETY EQUIPMENT FUNDING PROGRAM

- Began January 2023
- 10 requests for funding submitted by 6 departments, all requests fulfilled
- Over $4,500 awarded
- Half of requests were for self-identified improvements

Safety supplies funded include:

- PPE (safety glasses, lab coats, face shield, earplugs), waste bottle caps and connectors, eyewash station, slip-and-fall prevention, sound dampening, step stool

SAFETY COMMITTEES ESTABLISHED

- University Safety Committee covering all SU employees, meets at least semi-annually
- Sinegal Safety Committee for occupants of SINE, meets quarterly
- Lab Safety Committee for CSE lab staff, meets quarterly

EMPLOYEE SAFETY ORIENTATION

- Available in EngageSU
- Assigned to new and existing employees
- Over 80% completion rate
- Student employee version available through Academic Safety website

LAB SAFETY ORIENTATION

- Training completed for 22 summer undergraduate researchers

561

OSP staff provided 561 consultations to our community

19

19 faculty shared their research and insights during Lightning Talk events

36

Coordinated with sponsors to gain 36 approvals for project changes

63%

Faculty and staff engagement with OSP increased by 63% in FY2023

21

Worked with 21 first time submitters and on 10 interdisciplinary proposals

98

Administered 98 active awards and over $20 million in funding

Office of Sponsored Projects Impact

Over the 2022-23 academic year, the OSP hosted 11 workshops and events, piloted a new program, and launched new post-award resources to support grant seekers and managers throughout the project lifecycle.

Learning Opportunities

- GrantFoward Pop-up
- Research @ SU 101 Workshop
- Fulbright Info Session & Faculty Alumni Panel
- Staff Peer Learning Group:
 - New Resources & Words of Wisdom from a Departing Budget Manager
 - Preparing for Summer Grant Activity

Celebration & Networking Events

- Celebration of AY21-22 Sponsored Projects Accomplishments Luncheon
- Winter OSP Community Luncheon
- Spring PI Picnic
- Lightning Talks

Pilot: Faculty Grant Writing Circle (Humanities)

Over winter quarter, a small group of Humanities faculty met over the course of 6 meetings to provide peer review and feedback on grant proposals. The peer support was such a success, the group continued their meetings through spring quarter and two proposals have been submitted to sponsors. An expanded version of this program will be offered again in the future!

Individual Consultations

Over the course of the year, OSP staff led:

- 66 Research Development Meetings
- 283 Proposal Consultations
- 212 Post Award Consultations

Summer Faculty Fellowships

The Office of Sponsored Projects is proud to support the Summer Faculty Fellowship Program. This program provides financial support for tenure-track or tenured faculty and full-time librarians who are involved in an active program of scholarship, including the scholarship of discovery, integration, application, and teaching.

The program's goal is to support faculty efforts to build on previous scholarly or creative endeavors (e.g., for the writing of grant proposals) or to move projects in a new direction (providing the basis for future external support or publications). Recipients are selected each fall by a faculty committee.

Applications for the 2024 Summer Faculty Fellowship program are due November 1.

2023 OSP AWARDS

presented at the Provost's Celebration of Faculty Scholarship and Achievements

• SUPER PROPOSER •

Christopher Whidbey

Associate Professor of Chemistry

For his commitment to the advancement of his scholarship and undergraduate research through submission of three competitive proposals in fiscal year 2023, resulting in at least one prestigious award!

• STELLAR GRANT STEWARD •

Charles Tung

Professor of English and
Special Assistant to the Provost for Curriculum

For being a leader, mentor, and champion of sponsored project pursuits in support of curriculum revision; for catalyzing five grant proposals submissions - two as Principal Investigator (PI) and three as co-PI; and for his unwavering support of OSP and his colleagues.

• SYNERGISTIC TEAM AWARD •

PSP Grant Team

Jason Parkin, Assistant Clinical Professor of School Psychology

Mary Graham, Professor of School Counseling

David Fainstein, Assistant Professor of School Psychology

For their dedication to enroll and support students in the School Counseling and School Psychology programs by collaborating to submit a complex proposal to the Department of Education, receive a declination, adapt, and resubmit an application, resulting in an over $3.5 million award to create a pipeline of mental health professionals in high-need schools in the Puget Sound region.

• JOB WELL DONE •

NSF RED Grant Team

Teodora Shuman, Professor and Chair of Mechanical Engineering

Yen-Lin Han, Associate Professor of Mechanical Engineering

Kathleen Cook, Professor of Psychology

Greg Mason, Professor Emeritus of Mechanical Engineering

For their excellence in managing their six-year NSF-funded project titled Revolutionizing Engineering Education through Industry Immersion and a Focus on Identity, a complex, multi-million-dollar federal award, adapting and thriving through the pandemic, and ultimately, enhancing the culture of the Mechanical Engineering department.
